

Natasha Talks: Manor Farm Fruits - Pick Your Own Strawberries

Hi everyone! Natasha is here again.

Every year we go to Manor Farm to pick some strawberries.

As we cannot take all these beautiful berries home with us, my mum makes some photographs.

Manor Farm Fruits is situated in the picturesque village of Hints in Staffordshire.

As well as supplying fruits and vegetables to local restaurants, hotels and shops, the farm invites local people to Pick Your Own fruits.

We chose to go there midweek to avoid the crowds.

The best strawberries for picking today are in the top left corner.

We followed and didn't regret.

Summer was very late this year, but once it arrived, it doesn't want to leave.

Strawberry season is coming to the end but there are still vast quantities in the field left to be picked.

This year they planted them not in the ground, but in growing bags at waist height with a water supply to each plant. It is very clever and comfortable to pick the berries.

We found some raspberries... and some blackberries.

The raspberries were ready to eat, but the blackberries needed a bit more time to ripen.

I was trying to pull them, only some berries were really ripe and would come off easily. Straight into my mouth.

Aren't they gorgeous?

We picked a lot of big strawberries, and then decided to try some smaller ones.

It was very pleasant and a tasty experience! J

We bought a box of strawberries to eat fresh and a big box to make jam at home.

These are the prices.

I hope you liked today's trip to a British farm.
